YONGUE ARCHITECTS, PA was named after its founder, Joseph Henry Yongue, AIA, NOMA, to reflect his personal involvement in projects and his direct commitment to the client and community for quality architecture. The name also allows the incorporation of other carefully selected professionals and technicians as associates and consultants with the implication and intent of the firm as being perpetually young and innovative.

Mr. Yongue obtained his license to practice architecture in the State of North Carolina on October 1, 1986 and established the firm, J.H. Yongue Architect, AIA in that same year. The firm became incorporated on July 6, 1992 as Yongue Architects, PA.

The firm is exceptional and unique due to the experience in architectural engineering, corporate architectural and interior design, and business (MBA/Organizational Behavior) background. With the direct involvement of the principal architect, the client is more assured of consistency and commitment. Such brings an advantage to the project for the client's end-users and stakeholders.

The firm's attention to details is more than the normal as illustrated by most firms. Yongue Architects, PA is very sensitive to the owner's needs for having periodic reviews and completed drawings and construction reports in a timely manner. The firm plans its work and constantly monitors it for allowing efficient and effective commitment to our client's needs.

Yongue Architects, PA prepares in-house estimates for each project with competitive pricing in today's marketplace. Through the economical use of materials and space planning, Yongue Architects, PA has learned how to save the client money on initial cost and ongoing cost, while providing state-of-the-art designs.

Projects have included: architectural and interior design; space planning; campus and site planning for corporations; and commercial businesses; governmental institutions; schools; churches/religious centers; medical facilities; housing complexes and unique custom residential homes and gardens throughout the Triangle and Triad areas.
